My Violet.

He has had another very bad night & he is very tired today.
But except for this there is nothing much to be said. Waldorf comes this evening. Father wants to see him but says he is too tired to see anybody else.

Snowing wind, as I suppose Yes, but otherwise rather a nice day, we have been walking in the Gardens.

Dear Violet

Father is suddenly a good deal worse. He has had a shivering fit, & they think the Kidneys are affected. He is wandering. Nelson is away till 6.30 this evening. I will write tonight. There is may be no some day, I suppose. The nurses can't really tell one anything.

Dear Robert,

May I come to lunch Thursday, 1.30; without being a bore – that modest I am! This seems the coming in afterwards.

Things the same here: I have no time to write – what with other necessary letters, & I must tell you anything there is to tell – what a universal receptacle you are!

Yrs JMS.

My Woman,

A presentiment told me you would come today - I spend tomorrow at Cambridge - back in the evening. When are you up again. What Heavenly news that Rance is knocked on the head - but how? Is your husband all right? Things are rather bad here - at least one of the complications has come back, which makes him very tired, & very much depressed about himself. However he doesn't say much—Sutton says there was certain that a complication would happen—but they won't what he said at the time.

What a damned mercy Jan haven't gone.
Write to Spanoy.

Tuesday morning.

My Violet,

Rigby just gone. He says there is no immediate danger, but there may be a change at any moment. He thinks it more likely that he will live till Christmas, & get gradually weaker. He has examined him, & found that the growth has increased very fast. He is to keep in bed as much as possible, & not to go downstairs again. We are to have a Dr. every day, if not oftener, as he will have to be carefully watched. Mrs Cant come herself. So he is getting a friend who lives in Kensington to come. Mr Lemesley comes every 3 days.

Mrs is indignant with Letton, who ought to have been every day.

Adrian goes this evening. as he can't stay, but it is very hard on him. Father saw him & was pleased, & not surprised.
Rugby thinks he understands how ill he is, but he didn't ask.
